CHILD HEIRESS CASE TRIUMPH FOR MRS. WHITNEY

ALMOST ABSOLUTE CUSTODY GAINED
"MRS. VANDERBILT WILL FIGHT TO BITTER END"

Gloria's Decision At 14

New York, To-day.
The attorneys of both sides in the American child heiress case have drawn up an order for Gloria Vanderbilt's future, which is expected to be made public on Monday.

The New York "American" states that Mrs. Whitney, her aunt, won almost absolute custody of Gloria for five days weekly until Gloria is 14. Mrs. Whitney will have custody of the child, but on Saturdays and Sundays the child will be the guest of her mother.

At the age of 14, Gloria will be "free to go into Court and make her own choice of guardian."
The Journal adds that Mrs. Vanderbilt is expected to appeal. The "New York Mirror" quotes Lady Furness as saying: "We interpret Judge Carew's decision as favourable to Mrs. Whitney and we are absolutely shocked, but Mrs. Vanderbilt will fight to the bitter end, as any mother would."—Reuter.

ONLY BORE PERSONAL PETITION

Bucharest, To-day.
A man wearing a captain's uniform, attempting to approach the carriage in which King Carol of Rumania was riding yesterday, was knocked down by the escort.

The man raised his hands above his head to show that he was unarmed. A mounted officer wheeled about, and the man was knocked down either by the horse or by the officer's sword.

With the memory of the Marseilles crime still fresh, foul play was naturally feared, but the man was merely armed with a personal petition to the King.—Reuter.

RAIL GUARD SEARCHED

CUSTOMS OFFICER FORCED TO MAKE HASTY RETREAT

Armed Party Rescue Pursued Official

RAIL WORKERS' RESENTMENT

An incident which nearly ended in a grave clash occurred at Shumchun railway station yesterday afternoon, when a Customs officer was alleged to have made an attempt to search a member of the station staff.

The Customs officers were making a search of the passengers who had arrived by the 4 p.m. train, and it is alleged that one official commenced to rummage his hands over the person of a guard. The latter resisted and called to his colleagues for assistance. A general scramble for weapons was then made by the railwaymen, who chased the Customs official from the premises.

The officer beat a hasty retreat towards the wireless station, hotly followed by the incensed rail workers.

In the meantime, the remainder of the Customs officers were turned out, armed with rifles. One shot, a blank cartridge, was sufficient, however, to quell the disturbance. Since the armed raid made by a gang of Chinese on the Shumchun Market on Monday a stricter search has been made by the Customs officials, and it is believed that their zealous attitude has caused a certain amount of ill-feeling among the station staff.

New Silver Battle Forecast For Forthcoming U.S. Congress

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL
Washington, To-day.
The United States Treasury announces that it has no knowledge that President Roosevelt intends to make an early announcement of a new silver policy. The Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, made no significant comment when questioned regarding silver, dismissing the queries jokingly.

Observers opine that the Administration is still canvassing the situation with a view to forestalling the possibility of drastic silver legislation at the next Congress when the politically successful silver advocates will undoubtedly continue their pressure for more rapid purchase of silver reserves at a higher price.

In view of China silver in large quantities being unavailable, and the present Treasury price being unattractive to India, it is sur-

The methods adopted by President Roosevelt cannot give permanent relief of unemployment or bring a programme of planned economy. M. Vaght Stalin, above, Dictator of Soviet Russia, told Mr. H. G. Wells, the noted British publicist, in an interview in Moscow, while predicting the failure of the "New Deal."

CORDELL HULL SEES ROOSEVELT

REPLY TO BRITAIN EXPECTED TOMORROW

Washington, To-day.

The United States authorities are stated to be considering the cautious British overtures for joint action in naval affairs if the Three-Party discussions in London fail. The Secretary of State, Mr. William Cordell Hull, boarded the train carrying President Roosevelt to Tennessee in order to discuss the proposals. Mr. Hull returns to Washington tomorrow when the reply to Britain is expected.

The proposals, which, it is understood, were of a very tentative nature, were reported as being made to Mr. Norman Davis last Wednesday.—Reuter.

CHINA PRESENTS OPIUM PROBLEM TO THE LEAGUE

VEILED HINT TO MANCHUKUO?

COMMITTEE'S REPORT

Geneva, To-day.

Death is one of the most common penalties for trafficking in opium and narcotics in China under the latest regulations communicated to the League of Nations, according to the report of the Opium Advisory Committee.

The injection of morphia into another person for non-medical purposes is also punishable by death.

The new regulations envisage the cessation of all opium licences in China after six years.

Certain persons, chiefly aged folk and inveterate smokers, will be allowed to smoke opium, but all sales of opium to such people will be subject to licence.

The Chinese representative insisted that the collaboration of a certain Power was necessary, otherwise the Chinese Government's anti-narcotic campaign would be in vain.—Reuter.

Autumn Sports Clothes

Green A Favourite Colour

MASCULINE CUT

Sports clothes are so attractive this Autumn that we might spend most of our time in the country or travelling in order to wear them. Or possibly we shall want to live in them from morning until night in town, for everything except the most formal afternoon functions.

In the first place, the colours are gay as ever. Green seems to be the favourite—all shades, dark pine, deep blue green-olive, green and bright green with a sprinkling of green chartreuse. This last shade appears in many blouses and scarves which peep through at the neck of darker green or contrasting ensembles. All shades of brown, from rust to dark brown, reds of the American Beauty and strawberry tones, and mustard yellows are runners-up in the colour race.

Speaking of colour in wools, we have in mind not only the monotone weaves which are in themselves exciting—some nubby, some knitted-looking, others of fancy herring-bones and parquets—but also the plethora of plaids, stripes and checks in every variation.

Two striking combinations are most popular. One is the brown, green and white Prince of Wales plaid packet, which is strictly manly in cut and yet is not difficult to wear because of its perfect fit and such little details as an open pleat over each hip, and the gored skirt of dark brown wool which accompanies it. The other boasts a bright green, brown, beige and orange striped skirt, with the stripes running diagonally and meeting in points, front and back, topped by a matching green angora blouse.

NEW TWEEDS FOR GOING AWAY

Of special interest to those going on leave are the new tweeds of sand tones and creamy beige. Velet is combined with these very successfully, both on collars and revers.

There is one tweed coat with a pointed collar of velvet, which when open shows the velvet forming a narrow rever.

VIA SIBERIA—Letters and post-cards for Europe and South America are forwarded "via Siberia" if so superscribed.

REGISTERED and PARCEL MAILS are closed 15 minutes earlier than the time given above unless otherwise stated, and where mails are advertised to close at or before 9 a.m. registered and parcel mails are closed at 8 p.m. on the previous day.

AIR MAIL—Imperial Airways via Singapore, Bandoeng-Amsterdam via Singapore Saigon-Marseilles via Saigon. Correspondence for Europe and intermediate countries will be accepted for transmission by these Services. Rates and all particulars are given in the schedules exhibited at the General Post Office and Kowloon Office. All letters etc. must be marked "By Air Mail" and handed in at the General Post Office. Unless superscribed for despatch by a special air mail service, correspondence will be forwarded by the first service available.

Coincident with the reports that Reich Leader Adolph Hitler is preparing to end his long bachelorhood by taking unto himself a princess as a bride, Kemal Pasha (insert), Dictator of Turkey, is declared to be altar-bound with one of the sisters of King Zog of Albania, the most beautiful of whom, Rukie, 24, is shown above. He is 57 and divorced his first wife in 1925 by the simple Mohammedan process of walking out on her.

NEW BEAUTY BOX IN WASHABLE COLOURS

English Perfume "Best Seller"

London. You may have seen the new spill-proof cases that take your own box of powder and keep it germ-proof and just-proof! Now you can get a beauty box complete with one of these powder cases and with interchangeable jars or bottles, according to whether you prefer lotions or creams for your complexion care.

This beauty box is in attractive washable colours and is especially charming in ivory with different coloured stoppers in the bottles.

The newest scent sprays can be used with a flick of the fingers of one hand, and are about the size of a cigarette lighter. When closed, they are hermetically sealed and can be carried in the handbag without fear of spilling.

It is good news that finer perfumes are now being manufactured in this country. The latest perfume creation of a famous dress-maker is actually exported from England to France, where it is rapidly becoming a "best seller."

SCARLET CIRE BLOUSE

New materials keep surging forth. A cotton tweed with gay red white and black stripes, very rough and knobby was used for a suit with a scarlet cire blouse; the new elastic chiffon made the crisp-looking white blouse frilling backwards at the neck, black shantung was combined with a scarlet printed shantung tunic.

WHAT IS SEEN IN FASHION

Glove bangles in link designs that do not completely encircle the wrist. Gauntlets of quilted leather and broad-framed handbag.

Ring earrings in vivid enamel that clip on to the ear and are worn with enamel bar brooches upon tailored blouses.

An antelope bag with marcasite top, and a readable sized watch placed in the correct position for the owner to tell the time without the usual difficulty of turning the bag round.

Spiral earrings of gilt have neither screw nor clip; they are placed upon the ear in a manner that suggests a key ring.

NEW "TILT" IN HAT BECOMING

Early Shapes Revived

All sorts of varieties in the old coaching styles—late eighteenth and early nineteenth century shapes—are interesting this season. The Robespierre hard square crown is clever in felt, or in dark velours. The later boat-shape, with narrow curling brim; a quill at the side, of a dentured crown is piquant. Sombreros that can be large enough for sun or small enough to recall a one-side cloche are worn.

There are high crowns and shallow ones, but brims all tend to go up at the back. The new "tilt" is all forward, and this one can safely predict to last over the winter. It goes so well with the high collars of fur.

New Manicure Kit Cases

Manicure To Match Your Dresses

London. Those people who occupy themselves in keeping the nails of the nation lovely have been up and doing.

In these days a different nail varnish for day and evening is de rigueur, and many women go farther and have a different colour to match each ensemble. So the new manicure kit cases which have room for three or four varnishes are a timely boon, and a blessing when travelling.

A streamline model in real leather in the favoured dark tones of green and red and blue is popular, while for cruising there is a smaller but equally comprehensive kit with room for three different varnishes.

How do you like the idea of black tulip nails? Extreme, but they will be fashionable with the wine-red shades to be worn this season.

This autumn there should be less trouble with brittle nails. The very newest solvents are kind to the nails, and every woman should take advantage of them.

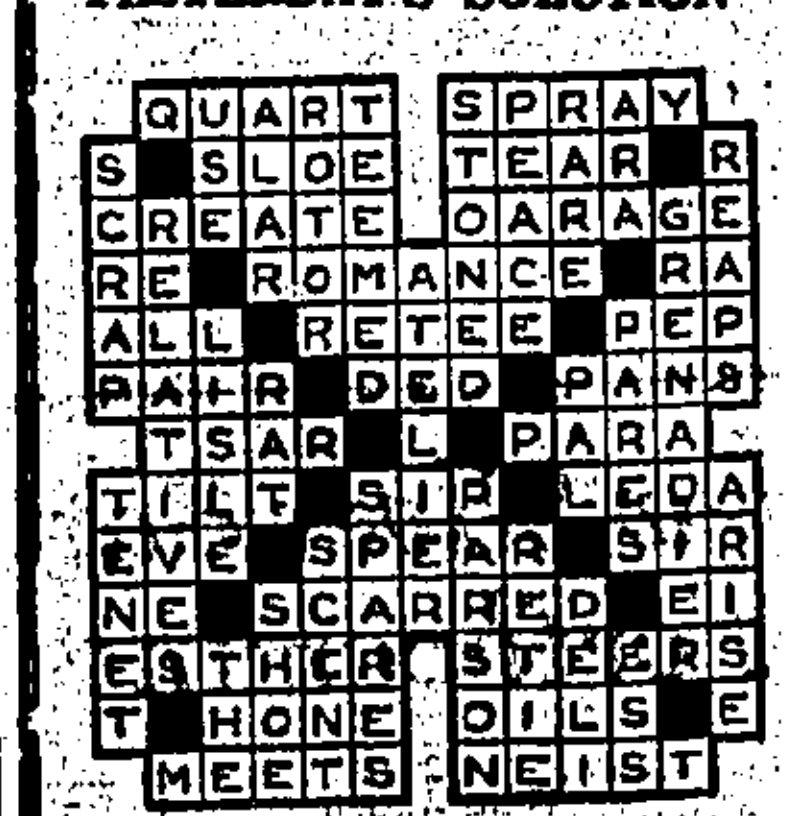

Many beauty parlours are now using oils for cleansing instead of cream. The newest oils are light in texture, and are charmingly tinted and perfumed.

AUTUMN HATS MAY BE HIGH

Paris. "Sing high, sing low" according to your taste, for your crown may be the one or the other. Milliners have roamed in time as well as in space for their inspirations, and their trophies range from the high Russian cap, to the low, crowned eighteenth century tricorn favoured by Claude Duval and other romantic highwaymen. Fur, alone or combined with felt or velvet, is the most popular material, with trimming or feather or cord, to agree with the formality or informality of the occasion.

Intuition Among Women

by Ely Culbertson

If the skill displayed by Miss Joyce Ryall on a hand played by her in a recent Duplicate game is any criterion, I offer the purely altruistic suggestion to the English team, which I am to play this summer, that they draft their charming compatriot into her country's service.

1—Miss Ryall lays her plans for an eventual contrast in no-trump.

2—An overbid, not without merit, predicated of course on the hope that the first bid will have the desired result.

West, holding six clubs to the Queen-Knave, was not unnaturally suspicious and defiantly opened his fourth-best club, which Miss Ryall ducked in the Dummy and East's King won.

East's failure to return the club was doubly significant, in that Miss Ryall knew, and knew that East must know, that West's Opening lead in the face of a club bid to his right definitely showed up the "psychic." The diamond Queen was led, which Miss Ryall allowed to hold; the diamond Knave was taken by the Ace, the spade eight led to the Dummy's Ace and a heart played from Dummy. East, of course, ducked and the trick was taken by the King.

Miss Ryall, after due consideration, decided that West, who had followed with the heart six, was not laying off with the heart Ace, for two reasons, both merely psychological, but nevertheless shrewd.

First, she knew West to be a player of indifferent calibre who had probably never refused to cash an Ace in his life; second, he had followed to the trick without the slightest hesitation. She therefore boldly took out Dummy's club Ace, on which East discarded a diamond, led another heart and, East in desperation again ducking, went up with her Queen and returned the third round.

East of course led another diamond, which Miss Ryall won with her good heart, on which East was forced to discard one of his two remaining diamonds. Then, with sublime confidence, she put East in the lead with the last diamond and fished his forced spade lead to win the last two tricks and to fulfill her contract.

NORWEGIAN F.A. INTERNATIONAL TO PLAY AT CENTRE HALF FOR KOWLOON SENIORS TO-MORROW

ROBERTSON RETURNS TO THE HANDLING CODE CLUB DEFENCE IS RESHUFFLED

TAVELIN TO MARK JONES

(By "ROVER")

The Club will not be as strong as they should be in the intermediate line, when they meet the Borderers to-morrow at Sookunpoo. L. G. Robertson has returned to rugby and his position at right-half is being filled by Tavelin, who will be given plenty to do in playing "policeman" to Jones, the Borderers' inside-left. Duncan will be on the other flank in support of Pote-Hunt.

Baldwin comes into the team again on the left wing, but will have to play up to standard if he is to get past Herbert. Otherwise the forward line is unchanged.

In the Junior eleven, to meet Kowloon on the Railway ground, Binnie comes back into the team at left-back, while Sloan will be seen on the left wing in place of A. Williams, who is being rested.

The teams are:—
First XI:—Rodger; Gamble and Strange; Tavelin, Pote-Hunt and Duncan; Fowler, Brown, Howe, E. Strange and Baldwin.

Second XI:—Payne; Nicholls and Binnie; Stevens, Forrow and Bitter; G. Williams, Fisher, G. Duncan, Carr and Sloan.

Reserve: B. Williams.

Underwood Still Injured

HURNS MAY DEPUTISE IN BORDERERS' ELEVEN

The Borderers are playing their last league match to-morrow when they meet the Club. On Sunday they play South China in a farewell match, which will probably be the last time the Borderers will be seen in action before they leave for India.

Underwood is still suffering from an injury to his ankle, but is likely to be available. Should he still be unfit, Hurns will appear at left half. The team is otherwise unchanged, and will be:—
Smith; Herbert and Morrison; Davies, Podmore and Underwood or Hurns; Mathia, Mullane, Forley, Jones, and Thomas.

There are no changes in the second and third elevens.

FUNG DOUBTFUL STARTER

Athletic May Lose Star Winger

There is a possibility that Fung King-yu, the outside-left, may not be able to play for the Athletic in their premier league game against Kowloon on Sunday, owing to an ankle injury sustained in Monday's encounter with South China "B".

The team is:—Shu Tin-lam; Mak Sui-hon and Wong Sik-ping; Lai Kwok-chiu, Tsui Ah-fai and Hor Chor-yin; Tang Kwong-sun, Chan Chen-wo, Ho Kar-keung, Au Ping-ming and Fung King-yu.

KEEN DUEL EXPECTED

BORDERERS TO PLAY S. CHINA

After League Game With Club

(By "ROVER")

IN spite of several postponements and cancellations, the League programme this week-end gives promise of some very good football, the outstanding feature being the farewell friendly clash between the League champions, the South Wales Borderers, and the potential League champions, the South China "A".

In the First Division to-morrow, Caroline Hill should draw a capacity crowd to witness the tussle between South China "B" and the Navy, while at Sookunpoo the Borderers made their farewell soccer appearance against the Club, and a rare struggle is promised.

REPRESENTED COUNTRY IN ALL BIG GAMES

WILSON MAY UPSET ATHLETIC

"TINKER" LEE INDISPOSED

(By "ROVER")

Kowloon's hopes against the Athletic have been considerably raised with the inclusion of P. Wilson, a 23-year-old Norwegian footballer.

Wilson, who left Norway two years ago, stayed in Shanghai last season for the Shanghai Recreation Club.

While in Norway he played for the Brann Football Club, one of the leading combinations in the Norwegian League, and has represented Norway against visiting English and European teams.

Wilson will be seen at centre-half, where his speed, ball-control, and powerful kicking will possibly have a dour effect on the Chinese team.

Bliss, last week's pivot, moves to the left-half berth, while Whitehead takes Lee's place on the right wing, the latter being indisposed.

The team is:—Cord; Everest and Eastman; Gilchrist, Wilson and Bliss; Whitehead, Elliott, G. White, V. White and T. Knox.

LO WAI MAN TO AID ATHLETIC

Welcome Comeback

Lo Wai-man will make a welcome return to the Athletic Junior eleven in their encounter with the Lincolns to-morrow.

Lo, who is an experience Athletic player and who is making his first appearance this year, has been selected to fill Lo Hon-cheung's position at right-back.

The team is:—Lee Kwok-ki; Lo Wai-man, Tang Kwong-wing; Chan Siu-man, Wong Sui-wo, Chan Chung-ye; Cheung Moon-wing, Tang Kwong-sun, Yeung Kan-po, Lo Chi-wan and Wong Sik-ping.

SOUTH CHINA "B" MAKE NO CHANGES IN TEAM

South China "B" are making no changes in their encounter with the Navy to-morrow.

The team is:—Wong Wah-kai; Chung Chi-yung, Yu Hing-yun; Tong Kwan, Lam Tak-po, Lee Kam; Yeung Si-yeik, Lai Siu-wing, Tsang King-ki, Chen Shek-kam and Lee Sik-yu. (Continued on Page 13)

GOLF NOTES

By "FAIRWAY"

THE Competition season at Fanning opened on Sunday and from now till the Spring the courses will be busy with couples engaged in competitive golf of one form or another.

The weather was not at its best on Sunday and the stiff wind played havoc with many shots. The Old Course was in excellent trim and with the rougher greens and more exposed nature of the New Course, I consider the latter was playing about three strokes harder. This is more or less borne out by the fact that only one player broke 80 on the New Course, though, for that matter, only two players scored under 80 on Old Course.

Jasper Clark Cup Duel

THE latter two players who played together, were those concerned in the tie for the Jasper Clark Cup, and from what I can gather the closing stages were full of excitement. When it was seen that the afternoon rounds would finish, barring serious trouble, in the low 70's, there was rather the nature of a neck-and-neck fight.

D. S. Robb had carried forward a stroke in hand from the morning and with three holes to play he was 'level' for his afternoon round and A. E. Lissaman was 'three over four'—altogether a difference of four strokes. Lissaman had a great 16th and 17th in 3 and 4, but Robb, lucky to get a 4 at the 16th, was unfortunate off his tee shot at the 17th and took a 6. Both hit good tee shots at the 18th, and while Lissaman was short and just on at the edge of the green, Robb lay pin high, but just off the left hand side of the green. Lissaman's putt hit the back of the hole and stayed out. Robb's chip left him a yard short—he missed his putt; Lissaman's went safely down; and so they live to fight it out again over 18 holes. I understand that no definite date has yet been fixed for the replay.

Wind Factor Mistake

THE first sixteen in the competition qualified for the match play in the Club Championship, and players returning 178 can surely count themselves fortunate on (Continued on Page 18)

The unique incident in last Monday's game between South China "B" and the Athletic when an injured South China back was penalised two yards from his own goalmouth for returning to the field without first informing the referee. The photo shows the S. China defenders crowding their goalmouth prior to the fruitless free kick. — (King's Studio).

MR. BUTLER HAS EVEN CHANCE TO SET TURF RECORD BUT THE OPPOSITION IS VERY POWERFUL

DINTY LACKS OPPOSITION IN MINOR EVENT

EMPIRE DAY MAY NOT START

DELIGHTFUL CHANCE FOR THE FIRST LEG

(By "RAPIER")

THE reported lameness of Empire Day has robbed the Hotham Handicap of much of its interest, and now there appears nothing else in the race other than Dinty (Mr. Deitz). Mr. Proulx is taking out Portia and should give Mr. Butler a close race, on Polar Star, for third place to the extremely lightly weighted "Friday" (Mr. Fung).

Heart's Glory almost did it at the last meeting, and Mr. Deitz has a good chance of riding two successive winners when he takes out the chestnut in the Tai Po Handicap. Chief Seattle (Mr. Dayle) will be dangerous in the absence of Hey Tor, while Partnership, in the hands of Mr. H. M. Pih, is a distinct menace over his ideal distance. Solar Star, though carrying 161 lb., is a likely outsider.

First Leg Of "Double"

I understand Mr. Deitz is taking out Delightful Chance in the first leg of the "double," in which case he will bear a heavy responsibility as the pony is bound to be a hot favourite following his effortless win in the Novices' race at the last meeting. It is rumoured that Young Chap will start here under Mr. Pih, instead of in the Leger, but I doubt whether this stayer can carry 166 lb. to a win over a sprint distance. He should place, however, with In Good Time (Mr. Botelho) and Chesterfield (Mr. Proulx) very much in the running. Kindo, if he accepts here, might bear watching.

The Castle Peak Handicap presents an interesting sprint race with King's Bounty (Mr. Dayle), Oak Bay (Mr. Proulx), and King's Fancy (Mr. Heard), appealing in that order. Bounty formerly held the record and is a quick starter from the gate, while Oak Bay has an 18 lb. weight advantage over the other Dynasty candidate. Brechin is the only real danger.

Hat Trick Waiting

The Tiger has won on its last two outings, and I can see little to stop the "hat trick" with Mr. W. H. Choy up in the Novices' race over a mile. Beating Racing Boy by 2 lengths over a furlong less last time out, The Tiger will be racing to-morrow at level weights, instead of having a 5 lb. concession. In a field which may quite easily cause a major upset, What A Chance appeals for third place with Wayward Stag a good outsider.

St. Leger Results

The following have been the results of the last five St. Leger:

AUSTRALIANS
1931—Mr. Chan Tin-sun's Woodland Stag (Mr. Frost), 166 lb., in 3.35.2.

1932—Messrs. Kong Bros. Polar Star (Mr. Butler), 156 lb., in 3.25.3.

1933—Mr. H. Y. Liang's Rosy Morn (Mr. Deitz), 151 lb., in 3.29.1.

SUBS.
1931—Messrs. Hall and Shenton's The Grouse (Mr. Frost), 156 lb., in 4.00.2.

1932—Mr. H. S. Chan's Racing Boy (Mr. Frost), 156 lb., in 3.47.1.

1933—Lancashire's Warrington (Mr. Frost), 156 lb., in 3.49.1.

GRIFFINS
1929—Mrs. Dunbar's Hiawatha (Mr. Soares), 156 lb., in 3.52.2.

1930—Dynasty's King's Colour (Mr. de Rosa), 169 lb., in 3.45.0.

1931—T. F. S. Gold Key (Mr. Harman), 156 lb., in 3.47.3.

1932—Mr. Dunbar's Liberty Day (Mr. Frost), 166 lb., in 3.37.4.

1933—Mrs. Pearce's Truthful (Mr. Heard), 156 lb., in 3.53.1.

Bright Star (Mr. Pan) won the race but a protest against bumping was upheld.

Mr. E. O. Butler has an even chance of winning three St. Leger races at to-morrow's Race Meeting.

ELECTRIC STAR UNRELIABLE OVER 1 3/4 MILES

TINY STAR WILL BE HARD RIDE

BAG TOR AS MENACE TO ABLE AMAZON

(By "RAPIER")

AT one time I considered that Mr. Butler had three "cinches" for the three St. Leger to-morrow, but I have changed my mind now. No jockey has yet achieved the "triple"—Mr. Frost failed by 2 1/4 lengths in 1932 when The Griffe lost to Polar Star—and if Mr. Butler does so he will have achieved the best riding feat of his meteoric career.

The news that Brilliant Star was not starting and that Mr. Butler was riding Electric Star rather surprised me. I do not think the latter pony can stay for 1 3/4 miles, despite his fine effort over 1 1/4 miles at the last meeting.

My choice for the Griffins Leger is Dynasty's King's Warden (Mr. Heard).

Ribble's Claims

The pony has come on by leaps and bounds during the last six weeks and is now tuned up to the right pitch for something big, and he could not have found a better jockey for his effort. Ribble is a stayer, of that there can be no doubt, and I am also forced to place him third, despite Mr. Pih's strong challenge on "Soldier" of China. "Britain" I do not fancy over the distance. Gladiator is a possibility.

The probable starters are Electric Star (Mr. Butler), Gladiator (Mr. Fung), King's Warden (Mr. Heard), Macaroni (Mr. Proulx), Ribble (Mr. Butler), Soldier of Britain (Mr. Deitz), and Soldier of China (Mr. Pih). Hydroplane, the Derby winner, is a definite non-starter.

Young Chap Queried

The sub classic will evolve into a titanic struggle between Cavalcade, Tiny Star, and Classic Hall. All have proved that they are likely to stay the gruelling distance during their training gallops, and this is likely to be the best of all three Legers.

The probable starters are Cavalcade (Mr. Pih), Classic Hall (Mr. Heard), Copper Idol (Mr. Botelho), Kindo (Mr. Pan), Sarabande (Mr. Ip), Soldier of Fortune (Mr. Deitz), St. Ives (Mr. Proulx), and Tiny Star (Mr. Butler).

There is considerable doubt whether Young Chap will start here, though, following his 2.13.0 mile on Wednesday, with a finishing quarter of 32.8, this is hard to understand. If he goes to the post he is going to be almost as big a danger as St. Ives if he decides to run. Tiny Star is a sluggard and Mr. Butler will be fully taxed to keep him going all the way round. It will be his hardest ride of the day.

Mutiny Bay's Improvement

Able Amazon should provide Mr. Butler with one win at least, although it will be no walk-over against Bag Tor (Mr. Davis). Mr. Pih, who gave Racing Heart her first win at the Annual Meeting, will see Mr. Heard take the Wonder entry to the post. Mutiny Bay is likely to offer a stern challenge for third stake money, and I would not be in the least surprised if the Dunbar candidate succeeded under Mr. Proulx who has got to know a difficult pony a great deal better than when he ran unplaced in the Queensland Handicap. High Finance (Mr. Botelho) is the only other starter, and is unlikely to place.

CENSORS' EYE ON "GRAND CANARY"

"TWENTY Million Sweethearts" represents one of the best musicals we have yet had. Mr. Busby Berkeley has been given a holiday, so we are not given endless reels of dance evolutions from this famous dance director and his girls. However clever they are, one tires of the sameness.

Here is a good story, well told, with Pat O'Brien superlative as the bumptious self-opinionated go-getter Radio scout. He discovers a singing waiter (Dick Powell), and, although the lad proves a flop in his audition, with the help of a fellow entertainer (Ginger Rogers) he finds his true value, and he later becomes the idol of the Radio fans.

The song numbers are something to remember, including the now famous "Man on the Flying Trapeze," and "String Along with Me." The Four Mills Brothers make some effective appearances, as also do the Three Rogues (seen here in "Going Hollywood"). Allan Jenkins is really indescribably funny as "Uncle Pete" of the Kiddle's Hour.

Ginger Rogers, for a change, has almost a straight part to play, and leaves the wisecracking to others. She is charming, and you will love her in the duet with Dick Powell.

I do not say that this claims to be one of the pretentious musicals turned out by the Studio that gave us "42nd Street," and "Gold-diggers of 1933," but I think I can guarantee that you will enjoy it far more than the recent ones from the same studio. Advised: (Alhambra).

Careers Of The Stars

EVERLYN VENABLE is nineteen years of age. Her father is one of the most noted authorities on Shakespeare in the States. Evelyn started her theatrical work in Walter Hampden's Shakespearean Co., and, after small parts, played "Ophelia" to Hampden's "Hamlet" from coast to coast. She was seen by a Paramount scout, and was given a chance in the films. A press agent put her before the public by the untrue statement that in her contract she was not to be kissed. Her first film was with Will Rogers in "David Harum," and she then played in "Cradle Song." She is unmarried.

FREDRIC MARCH's real name is Frederick Macintyre Bickel. He was born in 1895, and married Florence Eldridge, an actress, in 1927. He has two adopted children. Fredric started to earn his living in a New York City Bank, but then went as stage manager in a Stock Co., and was given a chance at films with Paramount in 1920. He first came into prominence with his portrayal in "The Royal Family," and later won worldwide renown in "Jekyll and Hyde." He is still with Paramount, but will soon go to Twentieth Century.

C. HENRY GORDON's real name is Henry Rucke. He is of Bavarian parentage and was educated in Germany and Switzerland. He did stage work in the States, then Broadway, and then finally came to the pictures. His first chance was in "Renegades" with Warner Baxter, and he is now on contract with M.G.M. He has married four times, and is outstanding in villain roles.

RICHARD ARLEN, whose real name is Van Mattemore, was born in 1899. During the World War he was with the R.F.C. He married Jobyna Ralston in 1927, and has one son. He started with Paramount in pictures after being a Sporting Editor, and has never been with any other studio.

ESTHER RALSTON has been on the stage since she was two. Her first screen success was in "Peter Pan," but later came to stardom in the movies. She later appeared in vaudeville and British pictures. She is married and divorced, having had one daughter. She is now on an M.G.M. contract.

ALLAN DINEHART was born in 1889. He was intended for the Church, but decided to go on the stage. Prominent in the variety and dramatic stage before taking to film work, his first success was in "The Trial of Vivienne Ware." He is usually in villain roles.

WARNER BAXTER was born in 1892. He was in stage work at first, where he met and married Winifred Bryson. His greatest roles to date were in "Arizona," and "Clash Kid." He is of Irish and Scotch parentage. He was first with Paramount and First National, but is now one of the biggest box-office attractions on the Fox lot. DIANE

"Elsie Randolph and Austin Melford will be appearing in 'Night Of The Garter' at the Star Theatre.

ROMANCE IN NAVAL ACADEMY

Midshipman Jack: Good Entertainment

Although life at Annapolis is chiefly the training of embryo admirals at the United States Naval Academy, it is also vested with its romantic episodes, as pointed out by "Midshipman Jack," RKO-Radio Pictures' comedy-drama coming to the Majestic Theatre on Sunday with Bruce Cabot and Betty Furness.

Cabot, Miss Furness and John Darrow provide the romantic triangle of "Midshipman Jack." Darrow introduces Cabot to Betty, and, seeing that the two are drawn to each other, Darrow lies to Cabot, informing him that he and Betty are engaged.

To learn the truth Cabot steals out of quarters and finds favour with the girl. He is espied and placed on probation, infraction of which means his dismissal. He violates his probation to save a friend's reputation and loses his own, as well as Betty's love in the dramatic and suspenseful climax which leaves him, after all, a hero.

HOLLYWOOD'S NEWLYWEDS

Ginger Rogers And Lew Ayres

BOTH APPEARING HERE OVER THE WEEK-END

AT two different theatres this week-end we will have the newly-married film stars, Ginger Rogers and Lew Ayres. The former in "Twenty Million Sweethearts" and the latter in "Servants' Entrance."

Mrs. Ayres, the Second (Lola Lane was the first) has made herself a big favourite everywhere. Her first film was a minor role with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster (Claudette Colbert) in "Young Man of Manhattan," and her second with Joe Brown in "The Tenderfoot." It is in musicals that this pretty red-haired girl scores, and few can put over a number better than she can.

She started her career by winning a Charleston contest, then toured in vaudeville, and at sixteen married a fellow artist, Jack Pepper, but the marriage was dissolved three years later. I think she is in a class with Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell when it comes to wisecracks, and there seems no doubt that this pretty 25-year-old girl will go far in her screen career.

Lew Ayres is 26. After a year at the University of Arizona, he started to earn his living playing the banjo in a Hotel Orchestra in Los Angeles. When a good-looking youth was required for the part in "The Kiss" with Garbo, he was given the test, and did so well that the role of the hero in "All Quiet on the Western Front" followed.

He has not looked back since, and attained stellar honours with Universal as a reward. Owing to his success with Janet Gaynor in "State Fair," he was co-starred again with her in "Servants' Entrance," and now make an ideal screen couple. DIANE

Short Shots

NEVA Filbeam, the 15-year-old screen sensation in British films is in New York for the premiere of her film "Little Friend." Jack Hulbert is also over there making a personal appearance at his film, now showing in New York.

Zelma O'Neal, wife of Anthony Bushell, has at last come into her own in British films. After successful appearances on the stage with Leslie Henson, she is co-starred with The Shall, Continental star, and Edmund Gwenn in a musical.

Ernest Lubitsch will direct perhaps two British pictures next year.

It is not yet decided who will play Sydney Carton in "Tale of Two Cities," but Warner Baxter, Ronald Colman or Leslie Howard will be chosen, with Frank Lloyd directing.

Ronald Colman is at work on "Olive of India," which is still being played successfully by Leslie Banks on the stage in London.

Jean Muir, who was so favourably received for her great work in "As the Earth Turns," will be leading lady with Leslie Howard under the direction of Frank Borzage in "Betsy."

Claudette Colbert and Gary Cooper will be co-starred in an adaptation of the book of "Carmen," not the Opera.

Joel McCrea has had to refuse his British offer for the time being, so that he can appear opposite Marlene Dietrich with direction again from von Sternberg.

Anne Harding will have Charles Laughton and Charles Boyer as her leading men in "Peacock Feathers," which they are doing for an independent studio. Boyer recently left Hollywood for France, but was quickly back in the only film centre that really counts. Britishers and foreigners alike know that to be away from Hollywood for long means a quick death to their screen careers.

Lew Ayres will be opposite Janet Gaynor in "Way down East." Remember Lillian Gish and Dick Barthelmess in the movies?

Bert Lytell and Lila Lee, both favourites in the Movies are in successful plays on Broadway.

Marilyn Miller, the famous Ziegfeld Follies dancer, has run away and married one of the members of the Follies chorus. DIANE

Authority And Consent

When anyone with the experience and ability of Sir William Hornell proposes for our consideration such a subject as the conflict of government by authority with government by consent, it is only natural that the problem should be debated where so ever there be two or three gathered together who take interest in the wider questions of the Management of States. The questions raised by the books that are now appearing, such as the Lloyd George Memoirs go to the very roots of political philosophy, and if we attempt to narrow down the debate to particular instances, that is only varying out the tradition of the English method which has not been unsuccessful in the past.

Baldly stated, authority versus consent, there can be no question of how most men's votes would go. They would all go for consent. That is more consistent with human dignity, with life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; with liberty, equality and fraternity; and so on. It is the principle of self-determination. But how can we apply such very abstract terms to the intensely concrete, variable, wayward unit of the individual man, who is the raw material of the experiment in organisation which we call a Government? How is his opinion to be obtained? If he is ignorant of the issues, is his opinion to be followed when it would be ruinous to his own well-being? If an immediate decision is necessary for his safety, is he to be ruined rather than that the principle of consent should be infringed. The writers such as Arnold Toynbee and Harold Nicholson, to whom Sir William invited our attention by his address to the Rotary Club last Tuesday, are after all writing after the event and attempting to draw a moral from mistakes made by men in a hurry who had only a small proportion of the information that is now available to us. The greatest moral that emerges from the history of the last twenty years is not that many of the decisions were wrong, but that most of them were made too late.

Discussion of old versus new diplomacy, open versus secret agreements, popular control versus expert administration, tends to throw into vivid relief certain incidents that were either not known at all to contemporaries or passed without comment. If we concentrate on one or two of these for the sake of clarity it is only the compulsion of space and not from any lack of recognition that they are only a few out of many. First we may take the question why England was bound in honour to interpose in a Continental war in which her losses of men and wealth exceeded all her previous wars together. What is the use of submitting for popular debate the question whether Little Piddington is to have a new pump, if so great a decision cannot be publicly discussed? Yet in August 1914 the British citizen had no option in the matter. Why? Not because of the invasion of Belgium, which the Cabinet was advised still left the discretion of war or no war for its decision; but because by an arrangement or series of arrangements of which the British private citizen was unaware, the French Fleet had been removed to the Mediterranean, leaving the Northern coast of France, open to attack, and the military dispositions had been made on the calculation that six British Divisions would be provided to form the left wing of the Allied Army. As Mr. Asquith said, there could be no refusal of co-operation which would leave England "alone in the world without a friend" if she refused to discharge an obligation of honour.

It would be difficult to explain to anyone who has grown up since those stirring days, the peculiar authority of Sir Edward Grey, who was the Minister responsible for Foreign Affairs, and who had made those secret arrangements, so formidable in their implications. The soul of honour and discretion, the heir of all the Whig traditions, he was trusted not only by his fellow countrymen but by foreign statesmen as well; and for many years his diplomacy had been successful in devising compromises in the Balkans and elsewhere. It may be taken as one of the assured facts that whatever he did in his official work was in accord with the accepted code of duty of honour. But who conferred upon him the right to commit his country to such vast obligations?

It is now known, and has been confirmed in the biography of Mr. C. P. Scott, the editor of the Manchester Guardian, that no information was given to the British Cabinet itself, and notably to the Lord Chancellor, Lord Loreburn, who was likely to be opposed to such a policy, of whose information guide of public opinion was accordingly not only defective but misleading. What has made more difference than anything else was the refusal of the United States Congress to ratify the Versailles Treaty. Only one exception to the rule that a nation will honour the signature of its official representative? But a very big exception. From the date of that vote, ratification ceased to be a formality and became the most important fact for diplomatists to consider. It may be taken for granted that nowadays the people of any country will not be held to be dishonoured if they refuse, to fight for any signature or semi-private promise made by a Minister if it has not been ratified by their constitutional organ of opinion. The same doctrine is the basis of Mr. de Valera's controversy with England. It is impossible to govern without some element of consent and some element of authority; the proportions are constantly shifting, but the requirement of public and constitutional ratification has altered the balance strongly on the side of consent.

THE BUFFS LEAVING KENT

The Buffs who, pace the Royal Scots, pride themselves on being the oldest regiment in the British Army, are to leave Kent.

The first battalion is in Burma. The second, which has been at Shorncliffe, is to be moved to Bordon.

The Buffs (East Kent Regiment) not only has the highest local recruitment of any regiment, but during its stay at Shorncliffe the second battalion has covered itself with professional and athletic glory.

In 1931 it was chosen to do the guard duties in London during the absence of the Guards. It has won the Army Golf Championship and for three years running the Army Cross-country Championship.

At Bordon it will not be quite in the wilderness. Its divisional commander will be Major-general Kennedy, who commanded the battalion eight years ago.

LAND OF RECORDS

Russia, like America, now thinks more and more in terms of "out-size" and records.

A Moscow resident states that the Bolsheviks now claim to have unearthed the world's oldest man. He is Artemi Lagashvili, said to have been born in 1784, in a village six miles from Tiflis, the capital of Georgia. He is thus a fellow-countryman of Stalin, whose real name is Jugashvili.

The 150-year-old Artemi, who still works every day in his vegetable garden, says he remembers seeing the Russian troops march into captured Tiflis in 1901.

Artemi's eldest surviving son is 80. Nobody seems to know how many wives he has had—his memory, although perfect on elementary history, is feeble in domestic matters.

ARE JURY WOMEN TOO
SENTIMENTAL?TENDENCY TO FORGIVE
NOT "SICKLY"

MAGISTRATE REPUDIATED

(By Margaret Lane)

FOR the last fifteen years London women have served on juries in this country. Yet only this week another weighty legal voice has been lifted against them.

Mr. St. John Raikes, K.C., chairman of Derbyshire Quarter Sessions, annoyed at a recommendation to mercy put forward by the two women members of his jury on behalf of a man convicted of stealing sixpennyworth of coal, spoke his mind from the bench. It had been stated that the prisoner had eleven previous convictions for similar offences.

Such a recommendation to mercy, he said, was nothing but sickly sentimentality—but then sickly sentimentality was always present in court when there were women in the jurybox. Women, he said, had no knowledge or experience of true justice; they judged by emotion and by sentiment, and emotion and sentiment were unhealthy things to have in a court of law.

The woman juror, in fact, is an offence to Mr. St. John Raikes. Judgment, to his mind, would be more just, and juries less prejudiced, if we heard no more of her. He is not the first judge or magistrate to dislike women on the jury. The late Mr. Justice McCordie had no patience with them. They were "too emotional, too nervous and too inexperienced in matters of human life," he thought, to be trusted with the public duty of deciding between right and wrong.

Stella Maris Incident

It has been a common occurrence, during these last fifteen years, for either counsel or prisoner to challenge women members of the jury and have them removed solely on objection to their sex.

Women jurors have often laid themselves open to accusations of emotionalism, of ignorance of that grimmer side of life with which juries have most to do.

There was the famous incident of woman juror in the Stella Maris trial at Maidstone eight years ago. Overcome by the emotional power of Marshall Hall's appeal to the jury, she went into uncontrollable hysterics and was led sobbing and moaning from the court.

And there was that time at the Old Bailey when three women jurors wept openly at the death sentence, frankly regretting their part in sending a murderer to his death.

Instances of women jurors asking to be excused because of the unpleasant nature of the case they have been called to try happen nearly every day.

The women themselves are often extremely unwilling to serve on a jury and come armed with a dozen excuses.

Not Representative

The only women who agitate to serve on juries are members of feminist organisations—and they, as everyone knows, but themselves, are far from representative.

A woman, much more than a man, is swayed in her judgment by emotion. When the 60-year-old prisoner faces her in the dock, all for sixpennyworth of coal, she is likely to ignore his previous convictions for the same offence and think that, after all, sixpence is a very little sum. She admits his guilt, but recommends him to mercy. It hurts her to see him go to hard labour for that handful of stolen warmth.

A woman has less inherent respect than a man for the sanctity of the law. Legal points sometimes seem trivial to her weighed against poverty or despair. It seems to her a terrible thing to help to send a man to the gallows, no matter how guilty he may be. If she must, under the weight of evidence, admit his guilt, at least she saves her conscience with a recommendation to mercy.

Invaluable To Decisions

For that very reason—for that very sensitiveness her legal detractors condemn—I believe the woman juror is invaluable to the decisions of the court. Emotion does not necessarily mean hysteria. A tendency to forgive in forgivable cases need be called neither sentimental nor sickly. A woman's judgment—which has little to do with legal technicalities—is often far more valuable in dealing with other women, with children, and with that vast body of crimes based on human emotions than the bare letter of the law.

The law tempered with human sympathy is a better instrument of justice than the dry and naked law. The woman juror, if she is a sensible, warm-hearted woman (as most of them are), is a human leaven in the harsher justice of men.

If ever I went on trial for my life, I should hope to see at least one woman on the jury.

I do not believe—with the opposite school of their detractors—that they are unduly harsh on women offenders, nor yet that they are too soft-hearted to be humanly fair.

CHINESE GIRL DRIVER FACES TRAFFIC CHARGE

Collides With Rickshaw
In Des Voeux Rd.

LORRY DRIVER IN CRASH

Summoned at the instance of Mr. A. Landau, of Jimmy's Kitchen, for driving her car, No. 2398, without due care and caution in Des Voeux Road Central in November 3, Mr. T. P. K. Kemble, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, tendered a plea of not guilty on behalf of Miss Panay Ng, of No. 65 Sing Woo Road, before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy this morning.

Mr. Landau, in evidence, said that on the morning in question, he was riding in a rickshaw along Des Voeux Road towards the Post Office when Miss Ng's car came up from behind and collided with the rickshaw before she sounded her horn. In order to avoid possible injuries he jumped out of the rickshaw. Mr. Landau added that at the time there was very little traffic and that defendant's car was going at an ordinary speed, but the road was open. He said that defendant did not stop her car on the spot, but two of three doors further up where they went out to do some shopping.

"They stopped not for my sake, but went up the steps to do shopping," said Mr. Landau.

The case was adjourned until next Friday, owing to the indisposition of Miss Ng.

Having done $35 damage to the railings of a house in Broadway Road, which was closed to traffic, Tsang Yuet-lai, driver of lorry No. 1112, was fined $10 for driving in a closed road, and $5 for failing to report a collision. Compensation for the damaged railings was privately settled.

"MERRIE ENGLAND"

Philharmonic Society's Success

FULL REHEARSAL WELL RECEIVED

Last night, at the China Fleet Club Theatre, the Philharmonic Society gave a real treat to a large and enthusiastic audience of Servicemen, by their final rehearsal for the concert version of "Merrie England."

The concert was marked by that easy grace and tunefulness so characteristic of Edward German's music. The cast needs no introduction to the public of Hong Kong, all being singers of no mean ability and repute. They quickly got into their stride, with a vim and precision that gave convincing evidence of hard work and skilful training. The rendering of the big choruses was grand.

The general ensemble was really good, with a nice balance of tone, though at times the orchestra was perhaps a trifle too enthusiastic.

"Bessie's" Cadenza. The principals did their work well, and, to mention only one particular, it was a delight to hear "Bessie" sing the cadenza in "Who shall say that love is cruel."

It was clear that the many encores demanded by the audience came rather as a surprise, and there was some hesitation over the repeats.

Without wishing to be minutely critical, one can congratulate the Philharmonic Society on the fine entertainment they are now offering the public of Hong Kong. Except in a few minor instances, it may be said that they took their fences well, and, if, on occasions, they lacked a little in finesse they made up for it by their splendid enthusiasm.

To sum up the performance without indulging in superlatives, it can truly be considered as "A Jolly Good Show"—Tenor Clef.

TYPHOON MAY RECURVE

The anticyclone has moved eastward, and pressure is highest over Korea and south Japan. The typhoon has crossed Luzon to the north of Manila, and is now situated near Bolinao, moving north-west. Observations of the upper air indicate the possibility of a recurrence of the typhoon's track to the north of Luzon, reports the Royal Observatory.

IS WORLD RECOVERY POSSIBLE?

Economic Survey By League Of Nations

EFFECT OF U.S. POLICY

(By HEBE SPAULL)

WHEN will the world crisis end and the economic life of the world assume more normal proportions?

That is a question to which we should all like to know the answer. For that reason the third annual "World Economic Survey" prepared by the League of Nations, is of special interest. "Looking back over a sufficient number of months and discarding seasonal fluctuations," the Survey begins, "an economic observer at the beginning of 1934 was able to note many signs of improvement from the lowest depths of the long depression. Warning voices were not wanting and the uncertain elements in the economic horoscope were too numerous to warrant facile optimism; but it was characteristic of the whole situation that the facts of recovery were visible and local, while the danger signals were more distant and international."

What the economist describes as "the short-run forces of the business cycle" were, in the Spring of 1934, making for recovery whilst the longer-run forces, typified by Governmental policies for the direction and control of industry and trade were still in process of determination.

The N.R.A. Factor. This, one gathers from subsequent sections of the Survey, applied with special emphasis to the United States where the ultimate success or otherwise of the National Recovery schemes is still in the balance. Because of the significance of the American experiment not only for the United States but for the whole world, a considerable amount of space is devoted to describing economic developments there.

The Survey concludes with the comment that "There was therefore, in the summer of 1934, a general disposition to await the evolution of events and Government policy in the United States during the autumn and early winter in the hope that returning confidence and growing prosperity in that country would render easier the restoration of more stable economic conditions and a greater degree of international economic co-operation throughout the world."

SCHOOL-TEACHERS'
LECTURE

Address By Prof. Forster
At St. Joseph's

Professor L. Forster, M.A. of the Hong Kong University, addressed over 70 school-teachers in a lengthy lecture at St. Joseph's College yesterday, when he spoke under the title of "The Bias towards the practical in Education."

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Hong Kong Teachers' Association, of which Prof. Forster is President. Among some of the points made in his address was the technical education accorded both sexes in Canton, and the medium which the schools afford for producing the city's workmen and the Government workers.

CORRESPONDENCE

APPRECIATION OF
FREE CONCERT

[To the Editor, "China Mail"]

Sir,—May I request your kind assistance in the matter of a small appreciation from the Servicemen? Last evening I took advantage of the invitation extended to Servicemen by the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society to attend a rehearsal of the concert version of "Merrie England" at the China Fleet Club Theatre.

It is not often that we Servicemen are given the opportunity to spend such enjoyable evenings, (free of charge) and I am sure that all those present last night had a most pleasant and interesting entertainment.

It was obvious from the high standard performance of the part of principals, chorus, and orchestra, under the baton of Mr. J. Anderson-Miller, that every member of the Society has worked extremely hard in arranging and presenting to the Colony a brilliant production.

Thank you and Good Luck! SERVICEMAN.

"Young Lanka"—Your letter should have been addressed to the newspaper concerned.—Ed.

CHAMPION DIVER INJURED

Peejay Ringens To Rest
For Two Days

SPECIAL MATINEE SHOWINGS
OVER WEEK-END

Peejay Ringens, the world's champion high diver, who is now performing with the Tait's Manila Carnival shows, next to the Peninsula Hotel, Kowloon, sustained a slight injury during his diving act on Wednesday night, and owing to this he was considered advisable for him to rest for two days.

He will, however, with his lady partner, Miss Edith Fehr, give his full performance at two special children's matinees, which are to be held to-morrow and on Sunday, commencing at 3.30 p.m. each day.

Peejay Ringens will perform his diving act at 6.30 p.m. sharp at each of these afternoon performances.

YOUTHS CAUGHT FIGHTING

Huge Crowd Watch
Them "Play"

"Do you usually have a crowd around you when you play?" asked Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy this morning when Mak Sing, aged 18, and Wong Ping Hung, aged 20, appeared before him, charged with fighting in Ground Street, off Queen's Road.

"Police constable No. 301 stated that yesterday at about 8.50 p.m. he saw defendants fighting, surrounded by a crowd of people. Defendants were both bleeding from the mouth."

Mak Sing, who had had two previous convictions for fighting, was fined $50. In default three weeks in gaol, and was bound over in a personal bond of $25. A fine of $2 in default two days' imprisonment was imposed on Wong Ping Hung.

U.S. FLYING SQUADS TO BE RAIDED IN ALL BIG CITIES

SECURITIES ACT TO BE ENFORCED

BOOTLEGGERS TO BE GIVEN
NO PEACE

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1924. Received, November 16, 8.18 a.m.)

New York, To-day. It is learned that the United States Government will soon establish flying squads in the principal American cities for the purpose of raiding bucket shops and security bootleggers.

The Securities Exchange Commission is completing plans to insure strict enforcement of the Securities Acts.

At Boston, the S.E.C. Chairman, Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, told the Chamber of Commerce that the Government's security regulation programme had not interfered with the flow of capital to business. The flow, he said, had been twice as much in the first nine months of 1934 as in the corresponding period of last year, before the S.E.C. was organized.

He reiterated the Commission's intention to help to promote legitimate securities and prosecute fraud. —United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

It is recognised that he will play an important part in the future development of the scheme for the re-organisation of the industry, which is now in an advanced stage. —British Wireless Service.

ABOLITION OF CAPITALISM

Minnesota Governor's
Ambition

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.

St. Paul, To-day.

Mr. Floyd B. Olson, who was re-elected Governor of Minnesota on the farmer-labour platform, is recommending the abolition of capitalism and hints at the formation of a Left Wing third party through an alliance with its own powerful group.

Mr. Lafollette has predicted a farmers' political revolt in two years unless they are given economic parity through guaranteed cost of production.

"I propose an enormous co-operative system competing with private business," he declared. The law's concept, he said, should be changed to protect the right to a job instead of the sanctity of property. —United Press per S. E. Levy and Company.

FOREIGNERS DO NOT PAY
BUSINESS TAX IN CANTON

The statement by Captain Eden fortifies the view of the consular body here that the collection, if made at all, should be nationwide.

So far, only those foreign firms on the West Bund and around Tai Ping Road and Sha Kee Road have been instructed to comply with the business tax regulation. Foreign firms in Shamoon are to be informed later.

On behalf of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, the Canton Municipal Government notified the Consular body here some four months ago that their nationals doing business in Canton must acknowledge receipt of the new tax and referred the matter to the respective home Governments. The second defendant received six weeks' hard labour.

To-day's Short Story.

London Night's Entertainment

By Marjory
Sharp

In all the length of Gower street there was nothing cheerful, nothing welcoming except the oblong glow of the coffee-stall; and, like a moth to a candle, Mr. Halliday drifted half-unwilling across the road and came to rest under its sheltering canopy. It was almost ten o'clock, he had had a good dinner and now wanted to get home; but for all that Mr. Halliday's elbow settled snugly to the counter.

"Ham sandwich, please," said Mr. Halliday, "and a weak tea."

The man nearest him moved up to make room, pushing a cup of coffee and an open book along the faintly sticky counter. He was so tall that his head almost touched the swinging light, and this surprised Mr. Halliday, for on closer inspection he saw that the gentleman was a Chinese.

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be
"Professor Boynton Re-reads History," by Edith Mirrlees.

"Prince or something, maybe," reflected Mr. Halliday, paying instinctive tribute to the tribal logic of his forefathers. The heavy overcoat, however, would hardly have been acceptable to a tramp; and one of the shoes, projecting into the lamplight, showed a long diagonal crack.

"One tea, one 'am," announced the stall-tender, slapping them down so smartly that a wave of opaque brown liquid slopped into the saucer. He was a thin, spry youth, probably far older than he looked, and the other customers addressed him as James.

"Sugar?" asked the Chinese gentleman; and, moving courteously aside, revealed not only the sugar-bowl, but also a sudden brightly-lit view of the other three customers. One looked like a clerk, one like a prosperous bricklayer; the third was an indubitable tramp; and they appeared to be exchanging desultory remarks on the subject of murder.

"Pore old gell" said the bricklayer.

The tramp took a scornful bite out of his saveloy. "Pore old gell nothing!" he said. "She'd lived 'er life, 'adn't she? An' a very nice life, too, with a snug little sweet shop 'n no troubles. I only 'ope there's someone 'andy to give me a crack on the ear when I'm seventy-two." He bit again and turned to his big neighbour. "Seen whether they got 'im yet, mister? I've missed me evening paper."

"I too," said the Chinese gravely, lifting his shadow from the page just long enough for confesey. (Mr. Halliday equited forward to see the title: it was Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," and Mr. Halliday was impressed.)

"If they haven't yet they soon will," prophesied the bricklayer. "You can't get past the police these

SHAUKIWAN THEFTS CLEARED UP

Men Caught Selling
Pawn Tickets

Two unemployed men, Chan Fok-chuen and Wong Sui, were this morning charged before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy with the theft of two rolls of cloth from a widow residing at No. 146, Main Street, Shaukwan, on November 4, and for the theft of a gold watch from a married woman, of No. 80, Main Street.

Inspector Logan, of the Shaukwan Police Station, said that defendants were arrested yesterday when they were attempting to sell the pawn tickets to passers-by. The first defendant, who had a previous conviction, was sentenced to three months' hard labour. The second defendant received six weeks' hard labour.

WASHINGTON MUST INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

Inflationary Proposals One Of Main
Factors Retarding Recovery

New York, To-day. In a speech to the State Chamber of Commerce, Professor Kemmerer, the noted financial expert, said that it was imperative that Washington should adopt a policy to inspire confidence. He charged that inflationary proposals and the fear of radical legislation were the prime factors retarding recovery. —United Press per S. E. Levy and Company.

BOSNIAN TELLS TALE OF TRAVELS

But Is Fined $20 For No Passport

Charged with entering the Colony without a passport, Jack Perkovich, a native of Bosnia, was this morning fined $20, in default one month's imprisonment, by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy. An expulsion order against the defendant was also issued.

Detective-Sergeant Mottram stated that accused went to the police himself and that he had a valid Chinese passport, but no papers to entitle him to come to the Colony.

It was learned that the defendant went, in 1925, to Algiers, where he proceeded to the Argentine for the last eight years. In January this year he stowed away on board a British ship, which he thought was going to Europe, and landed in Singapore. He then went to Tientsin and later drifted down the China coast to Canton.

Sergeant Mottram said that a man of accused's type would not be able to secure a visa to the Colony unless he had shown that he has some definite work to do.

U.S. GOVT. SUPPORT WITHDRAWN

New Rising Prices Of Securities

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1924. Received, November 16, 8.18 a.m.)

Washington, To-day. The United States Treasury Secretary, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, has announced that Federal agencies sold U.S.$16,709,500 worth of Government security holdings in October.

This is interpreted as the complete withdrawal of Government support from the security market due to the rising prices of securities and the lack of necessity for Treasury support. —United Press, per S. E. Levy and Company.

CANTON PRUNES EXPENDITURE IN FACE OF DEFICIT

Budgets, if they are productive or have taxes or dues to collect. The others must exercise necessary economy.

A tremendous loss has been sustained by the destruction of defence works in Southern Kiangsi and Northern Kwangtung by the present Communist incursions. The war has been the most serious drain on Government revenues since 1928.

Cheerful Tone On Wall Street

"Bonds:—All grades of bonds are better. —Further reports of frost from the wheat districts gave rise to additional short-covering. The market is otherwise unchanged. Total sales:—17,335,000 bushels.

"Cotton:—The Liverpool market and the Trade are reported to be better buyers, while increasing pressure of December liquidation is likely to offer fair buying opportunities.

"Rubber:—Manufacturers' inventories of cheap rubber are almost finished. The industry should feel the effectiveness of the restrictions about the end of December. Technical fundamental conditions are more sound and a constructive view is justified for the long pull. Consumption was moderately bullish. Total sales:—377 lots.—Reuter.

Market Factors
The following telegrams were received by Messrs. S. E. Levy and Co., from Reuter:

Favourable factors prior to the opening of the markets were: (1) Indications that industry will be allowed more independence by the Administrations and talk of a vigorous recovery drive by Big Business during the coming month is arousing the interest of Wall Street. (2) Weekly electricity production totals 1,676,000,000 k.w.h., which is an increase of 3.8 per cent from the corresponding period of last year.

Unfavourable factors were: (1) It is understood that unsettled conditions in Europe resulted in very little stock market business here. (2) Petroleum daily average production totalled 2,375,000 barrels, which is an increase of 9,000 barrels over last week's figures.

Night Telegrams
The following telegrams were received by Messrs. S. E. Levy and Co., from Reuter:

Texas Gulf Sulphur has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 50 cts. International Nickel has shown a third quarter net profit of $4,005,000, equal to 24 cts. per share as compared with $3,773,000, equal to 22 cts. per share last year.

A message from Washington states that Mr. Camille Gutter, Director of the Hauteka Tanga Mines is on his way to Europe after informal discussions with representatives of the American copper companies having mines abroad, on the question of the calling of an international conference in connection with the curtailment of production outside the United States. It is understood that an agreement has not yet been reached but the outlook for the general meeting is now more favourable.

Heavy melting Steel Scrap prices have advanced 25 cts. per ton in the Chicago and Pittsburgh districts. Bank clearings totalled $3,860,000 against $4,327,000 during the corresponding period last year. Brokers' loans totalled $568,000,000.

E. A. Pierce Co.'s Report
In their market report, the American Oriental Finance Corporation, correspondent for Messrs. E. A. Pierce and Company New York state:

"Stocks: The subsidence of liquidation of Utilities encouraged fresh buying this morning and was followed by profit-taking this afternoon. The weakness of Gold Stocks in the final hour is possibly due to uncertainty over the European monetary situation.

"Wheat: The strength of Stocks and Corn induced a sharp advance, which was followed by profit-taking on the continued dry weather in the West and South-West. Comment on the shortage of rainfall in the semi-arid sections of the Winter Belt exerted some influence.

"Cotton: There was a good demand by 'spot' houses for near fixing prices. The December liquidation was well absorbed. The off-take in Cotton goods was moderate. The Yarn market was irregular and the basis continues to be very high with offerings light.

"Rubber: The market rallied on steadier London cables and on other markets. Larger dealers were buyers and there was some commission house liquidation. Trade interests are holding off.

"Flash: Brokers' loans decreased by $8,000,000.—Reuter.

London's Forecast
A forecast from London on the probable trend of the New York market, states:
Cotton may open steady. It is reported that spinning machinery during 1934 exceeds that of the entire total for the past three years. Little change is expected in prices and in sentiment on Wall Street with business remaining small.
Rubber is expected to open better. Wheat is a two-sided market. Argentine crop report is conflicting, while weather conditions in the South-west continue dry is also a factor. Prices should be slightly higher.

NAVAL OFFICER'S SON MARRIED

Pretty Ceremony At St. Andrew's

CATHIE — SHAW

The wedding took place at St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, yesterday of Miss Dolores Mary Alice Shaw, who arrived yesterday morning on the P. and O. Rampara from England, to Mr. Donald Colla Cathie, the youngest son of the late Commander R. A. Cathie, R.N., and Mrs. Cathie of No. 35 Lower Baginott Street, Dublin.

The bride is the only daughter of the late Mr. John Shaw, Colonial Secretary, Sierra Leone, and Acting Governor of Lagos, West Africa, and Mrs. A. de B. Shaw, of Thornton, Bray.

The bride entered the church on the arm of Mr. T. Smith, of the Kowloon Canton Railway, and was preceded up the aisle by the Rev. J. R. Higgs, who officiated at the ceremony, and the choir boys. Mr. Rupert Baldwin played appropriate music on the organ. The bride wore a blue and white ensemble, blue shoes and gun-metal stockings and carried a sheaf of peach tinted gladioli.

Mrs. T. Smith, Matron of Honour, wore a blue flowered georgette gown. Mr. A. E. Perry, also of the K.C.R., was best man.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the St. Andrew's Church Hall and later, the happy couple left for their honeymoon which is being spent in Canton.

APPEAL DISMISSED

Full Court Uphold 4 Years' Sentence

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Lo Siu-kwong, a Canton Chinese, made an unsuccessful appeal against the sentence of four years' hard labour imposed at the October Sessions by the Chief Justice Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor for manslaughter of his sworn brother, before a Full Court of Appeal yesterday.

Mr. Justice P. Jacks and Mr. Justice J. J. Hayden comprised the Court and in dismissing the appeal said that if prisoner wished to sue for mercy he could direct his petition to the proper quarter.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, appeared to oppose the petition which was made in writing in the absence, by request, of the prisoner.

The particulars of the case as adduced at the trial were that prisoner and Chan Shop-ye were sworn brothers. On the night of September 1, Lo went to an opium divan in Sai Street to speak to Chan and they had a quarrel in which Chan was fatally stabbed with the blade of a pair of scissors held by Lo. The last-named was injured on the head by Chan, and went to Canton, from which place he was brought back for trial.

WOMAN CONVICTED FOR VAGRANCY

Would Not Pay Her Hotel Bill

BECAUSE SHE WAS HAUNTED BY "SOMETHING"

That she had been continuously haunted by people during the last eight years in England, Australia, Singapore, and Hong Kong, was revealed by Miss Florence Helen Stratford, 40-year-old native of England, who was charged with being a vagrant in the Colony before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

Mr. A. K. Diamond, manager of the Peninsula Hotel, was the last witness called yesterday to give evidence. Mr. Diamond said that defendant registered at the Peninsula Hotel on June 18 and that she came from Australia with a letter of introduction from a firm in Brisbane.

A formal letter requesting her to meet her account was sent to her by the hotel management on July 16. Mr. Diamond said that she replied by telephone. He then went to Miss Stratford in her room with a clerk. He said that Miss Stratford said that she did not wish to pay her account, although she admitted that she had money at the time. When asked why she did not want to pay, she replied that something was haunting her and that she wanted to get to the bottom of it. Mr. Diamond then said that she maintained this attitude throughout her stay at the hotel, and on July 19 instructions were given to look her room after she left. The bill amounted to $255.40.

Mr. Schofield suggested that she be detained at the Government Civil Hospital temporarily, but Sergeant Mottram then said that hospital authorities did not consider Miss Stratford as a patient any longer. "The only place for such case is the House of Detention," he said.

After hearing the case His Worship said: "I am afraid I can come to no other conclusion but to convict you on the vagrancy charge, in the sense that you had no visible means of support." Mr. Schofield added that the question whether she is to be given an opportunity to look for work here, or whether she is to be sent away, was for the Government to decide. Defendant was sent to the House of Detention temporarily.

TALKIE TALKS

"War Babies"

Since Shirley Temple was three she has been a star in Burlesque Comedies. Then a Fox scout saw her, and gave her the big chance in "Stand Up and Cheer," so this "Miracle Child," became the screen sensation, and has been starred in picture after picture, going from Fox to Paramount. Her Burlesque days are over, but they still remain as mementoes of this amazing child's talent and versatility. We hope to see many of them here from time to time, and the first is served as an added attraction to "Grand Canary." "War Babies" is the title.

"Grand Canary"

"Grand Canary" tells of a Dr. Harvey Leith (Warner Baxter) who has invented serum in his London Laboratory. When he administers it too late three patients die and he is disgraced as a quack. Morbidly discouraged, he boards a ship for the Canary Islands, and meets lovely "Lady Mary Fielding" (Madge Evans) returning to her husband. Dr. Leith settles at the home of a dilapidated Marquis, and when the yellow fever breaks out he successfully tries his serum on the natives. He then returns to his country an honoured man. But—here the new censorship stepped in, and instead of Lady Mary Fielding going with him, she merely sends a telegram that she is happy because he is. You know how well Warner Baxter can do this sort of role. He gains all your sympathy and liking. Others, besides Miss Evans, who do well are Juliette Compton, Zita Johann, Marjorie Rambeau (grand as the lodging house-keeper) Roger Imhof, and Barry Norton. Worth seeing. (King's)

"Straight Is The Way"

"Straight Is The Way" is a heavily dramatic story that is well acted, with Franchot Tone doing his best work since "Stranger's Return." We find him as a man framed behind prison walls through his infatuation over a girl (played by Gladys George, an actress new to the screen). When he comes out he decides to go straight, which makes his old mother (May Robson) and the girl who has always loved him (Karen Morley) very happy. They have cause for worry when his former "flame" turns up in his attic room, followed by her lover, Jack la Rue. In the fight that follows la Rue is killed. For once the Police are kind and lenient; and when the man confesses everything, he is vindicated. There is nothing new in the story, but the acting makes it worth-while entertainment. C. Henry Gordon and Nat Pendleton are outstanding in support. (Queen's)

"I've Got Your Number"

"I've Got Your Number" has a wisecrack every speech. This amusing vehicle features the big favourites, Joan Blondell, Pat O'Brien, Glenda Farrell, Eugene Pallette and Allan Jenkins. It is an all-rowdy fun, and inclined to make one feel that

"Trouble Shooters," as repair men are called, have nothing to do except think up the next wisecrack.

When the hero, Pat O'Brien, meets the pretty, telephone operator, Joan Blondell, and she has as smart an answer for him as he can give, they decide it is love. Joan lands herself in the midst of the usual gangster trouble, and is only saved by Pat tapping the wires. It is speedy action, racy dialogue, and no a dull moment. Don't miss this at the Alhambra.

"Servant's Entrance"

"Servant's Entrance" starts slowly, but when it gets going, it soon becomes the usual Gaynor type, and is thoroughly enjoyable. It is rather inclined to be "Cinderella backwards"—rich girl this time, and poor boy. The comedy is fresh and gay, and, although the ending is obvious it does not mar one's enjoyment. The background of Sweden lends a novel touch, and the scenery is gorgeous.

Wistful, lovely little Janet, on hearing that her father has lost his fortune, decides to earn her living as a servant. She dashes about from employer to employer, as cook, nurse-maid, and seamstress. Her first position is with the wife of the newspaper cartoonist. Imagine Ned Sparks, continually talking suicide because he can't think out any more funny ideas! This comedian has a way all his own of raising laughs.

When Janet lives in the house of a retired brewer and his wife, they treat her like a daughter. Lew Ayres is their chauffeur, but he is not particularly interested in women, devoting all his spare time to building a motor boat. You can guess that they fall in love, but not before they face some amusing and sentimental situations (not forgetting a Walt Disney cartoon). Janet manages to extract as many laughs and tears as ever, while Walter Connolly, Louise Dresser, G. P. Huntley Jr., Buster Phelps, Anne Gibbons, and Siegfried Rumans are the best among the support.

Lew Ayres and Janet Gaynor make a truly delightful team, and they are as good as they were in "State Fair." Recommended. (King's)

"To The Last Man"

"To The Last Man" is a Zane Grey story out of the usual Western class. Two Kentucky feuding families carry their arguments West and fight it out until only two are left, Esther Ralston and Randolph Scott. There is top-notch acting from all concerned, including Buster Crabbe, Noah Beery and Jack la Rue. (King's)

"Madame Du Barry"

"Madame du Barry" is efficiently produced and directed by William Dieterle, but the story of the favourite at the Court of France, has been done so often that it has lost its attraction. Dolores del Rio is simply herself in the marvellous creations of Madame du Barry. She is, however, unable to gain any sympathy in her character, spending millions on herself and wilful extravagances while France starved.

Reginald Owen as the King does piece of work, and Verne Treadwell, (Mrs. Adolphe Menjou), Osgood Perkins, Victor Jory, and Anita Louise are among those present. There is too much of the sex predominating in the film, and many of the scenes had to be retaken when the new censorship stepped in at Hollywood. Perhaps you remember Norma Talmadge enacting this role in one of her few talkies. (Alhambra)

Majestic Programme

Sylvia Sydney and Gary Grant do creditable work in "Thirty-day Princess." It is a grand chance for Miss Sydney to wear lovely clothes, and there are some delightful "bits" in the film. Worth seeing.

This will be followed by "Midshipman Jack," Annapolis provides the colourful setting for this story, with martial music, flags, and drills. Bruce Cabot, Betty Furness, and Frank Albertson are in the cast and the brother and sister, Florence and Arthur Lake, provide the humour. Then we have Lionel Barrymore in a strong biographical play, "Sweepings." Gregory Ratoff, as the Jewish assistant who comes to the little store in Chicago at the time of the great fire and sees it grow to become the biggest, almost steals the acting honours from the star. Helen Mack does a bit in an outstanding manner. Eric Linden, Gloria Stuart, William Gargan and Alan Dinehart also do nice work. (Majestic)

Oriental Performances

I liked "Working Man" immensely. George Arliss and Bette Davis are outstanding in this delightful comedy-drama. This will be followed by a sure-fire winner—"Tarzan and His Mate," recently shown to crowded houses at the Queen's. It gives us Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan with herds of animals in a grand spectacular film. (Oriental)

Coming To King's

We are promised the first Hollywood release of the famous German star, Dorothea Wiecke, in her best picture, "Cradle Song," with Evelyn Venable and Kent Taylor. More of this later, but the ethereal beauty of the German girl, who made her fame in "Maedchen in Uniform" is seen to best advantage in this poignant touching story of a nun.

This will be followed by the latest screen sensation, Anna Sten, the Soviet star, to whom Sam Goldwyn gave $1,000,000 worth of publicity. She is worth it too. Wait till you see her amazing beauty and talent in Zola's famous story "Nana," (at Home "Lady of the Boulevards"). I think, she will more than hold her own with the other foreign importations, Garbo and Dietrich. Marvellous support is given by Lionel Atwill, Phillips Holmes and Mae Clark. More of these two super attractions later. Coming to the King's.

Coming To Queen's

Take special notice of the baby in "She Made Her Bed." He is the son of Dick Arlen and Jobyna Ralston. Sally Eilers plays his mother, and Robert Armstrong the good-for-nothing father, unfaithful to the young wife, Dick Arlen is the handsome boy-friend. It is very exciting at the finish—the baby is in an ice-box during a great fire and with a tiger loose. I can guarantee some thrills and good acting. (Queen's)

Star Showings

If you like the brand of quiet humour served up by Sydney Howard here is your chance to see him in "Night of the Garter." It is a Broad farce.

This will be followed by "Charlie Chan's Courage," again starring Warner Oland as the bland Oriental detective.

Then, I think, Jessie Matthews's first film "Man From Toronto," (played here years ago by the Courtneidge-Holloway Company), with Ian Hunter and the late Fredrick Kerr. I remember liking it, and Miss Matthews was a delight. A really beautiful film follows—"Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," starring Dorothea Wiecke, with Alice Brady doing grand work as the poor woman who recovers the kidnapped child. (Baby Is Roy), looking dull and unintelligent as usual, is featured. Exciting and well acted. (Star)

Mr. Halliday glanced in some trepidation at the big, finely modelled head, the narrow eyes, the close, authoritative mouth: murderer or not, the man was extraordinary. He wore his shabby coat with such an air that one could not remember, afterwards, whether it were actually patched or not.

"I wonder," he was now saying, "how far that theory—the murderer drawn back to the scene of his exploits—is based on actual fact, and how far on humanity's sense of the appropriate." One could imagine a professor of psychology, for example, committing murder from the highest experimental motives.

"I hope not," said the little clerk earnestly. "Oh, I do hope not. My son's going into the teaching profession next September." And he took a hasty sip of coffee, peering anxiously from face to face over the rim of his cup.

"If you ask me," said James, the stall-holder, leaning forward between the biscuit tins, "I'd say murder's done for one of three motives and three only. Money—like the one round the corner; love—like all these crimes of passion they 'ave in France; and hatred. That's all."

"All!" the tramp paused, half-way to a bite. "Love an' 'ate an' money—why, there's nothing they aren't the only three reasons for. Why am I here like this, all in rags? Love. What was the war fought for? Hate. An' what's wrong with the 'ole blooming world? Money." His hand completed the journey for a while, overcome by his own wisdom, he masticated in silence.

"It's a funny thing, though," said the bricklayer, "that no one saw or heard anything of him. The policeman found the door open at five past one, and there'd been you here all that time, James, to say nothing of the taxi-men. It's very odd indeed."

"Oh, I don't know," argued the tramp, "what's to prevent 'im leaving—an' coming, for that matter—by the other end of Drage-street, past as quiet as one in the mor'n'."

"Is it, now?" observed the stall-keeper. "That's interesting." The tramp grinned sardonically.

"Go on, Sherlock, ask me another. What was I doing last night in the region of Drage-street, eh? And the answer to that's nothing, 'cos I spent last night in a bed... with twenty other gentlemen in the same room." He finished his savory, drained his cup; then deliberately, ostentatiously, produced in payment a crumpled ten-shilling note. The four men looked at it; and Mr. Halliday at least drew a little away.

"Here, where d'you get that?" asked James sharply.

"Found it, sonny. Found it just in the gutter here."

"There—there's something like a stain on it," whispered Mr. Halliday.

"Nonsense," snapped James, "she wasn't near the money. If you ask me, that's tomato soup." But still he hesitated, one hand on the cash-box, and was still so wavering when the company was impetuously augmented by the arrival of a breezy young man in a tweed jacket.

Medical student, thought Mr. Halliday wisely; he had seen those jackets before, in all the streets round.

"Hello, James," said the young man cheerfully, "I owe you a bob." And he span the coin on to the counter.

"Here, what's this for?" demanded James suspiciously.

"Two savoyes, two ham sandwiches. Pinched of your stall last night by me and the boy friend while you were absent on neglect of duty. We didn't like to leave the money in case that got pinched, too."

The stallkeeper picked up a glass and rinsed it out methodically.

"Lucky for you I'm an honest man," he said, reaching for a dishcloth. "It's some other pore bloke you bin robbing, not me. As long as this stall's open I'm in my place, which is 'ere behind the counter, and no one gets away with no savoyes with me knowing it."

"Well, you damn well weren't here last night!" retorted the young man hotly. "We were here from about half-past twelve till a quarter to one, and there wasn't a soul in sight!"

On the little group by the counter an odd alliance descended, and before anyone found words to break it, the small clerk-like fellow with the bowler had stepped forward to the edge of the light and made a sign into the darkness; after which, turning back to the coffee-stall, he said quietly:

"James Parker, I charge you with the murder of Emily Tarrant, at 14, Drage-street, on the night of Wednesday, 27th September. And I caution you that anything you now say may be used in evidence."

Golf Notes

qualifying. At one time it looked as if even "Optimist" had a chance of qualifying! The golf was not good, generally, and though "late nights" may be blamed in some cases, possibly forgetting the fact that a struck ball is affected little, if any, by a wind was responsible for most "bad holes."

Fairway Excellent

REVERTING to the state of the Old Course, Hinchins is to be warmly congratulated on its condition on Sunday. The fairways, newly cut and brushed, were in excellent trim, and the freshness of the greens suggested a recent, not merely watery, but thorough soaking. And a little bird-whispers that in a year's time the courses will have improved beyond present comprehension.

AND finally all golfers will join in congratulating O. E. C. Marton on his latest conquest and wishing him everything good in the future.

(By "NIBLICK")

H. MUNDY, the Captain of the Kowloon Golf Club, seems to be able to choose a match winning side, as witness the trouncing administered to the Presidents' team on Sunday last. A. T. Braley represented the President who was unavoidably absent owing to business. This was the first of its kind, replacing the old fixture of Club versus the Y.M.C.A. The splendid spirit and cheerful gathering leads me to hope that it will become an annual event.

The Rule Incident

I must again refer to the incident "which occurred during the Championship qualifying round a couple of weeks ago. I had thought that my statement of the case in these columns last Friday amply covered the subject, but, seemingly, this is not so. The point at issue seems to be a question of whether the Club is in order in making a local rule which involves a greater penalty than a "like" rule published by the R. & A. The hole alluded to is over the stream and the local rule penalises a ball driven into the stream with "stroke and distance" provided the ball is unplayable. Rule 27 of the R. & A. could be interpreted to penalise a player under like circumstances with the loss of a stroke and the dropping of the ball on the further side of the water hazard, hence the difference of opinion with regard to the two dissimilar penalties. It is fairly obvious that when the Local Rules were framed the penalty of stroke and distance was adopted because on several stretches along the further bank of the stream the ground is too rough to allow "dropping." Therefore, it is safe to assume that this penalty was adopted to obviate "dropping" a ball. I believe the whole matter has been referred to the Rules Committee who govern the "Golfers Bible" and I await with interest their decision in the case.

Club Expansion

A decided addition to the amenities of the Club is in course of erection. Hot water boilers are being installed and these, together with the new kitchen ranges, will no doubt prove a boon to golfers during the winter. The course is also to have a few additions as I saw the Greens Committee "sizing up" the ground below the hill on the seventh fairway and from the matches of conversation and allusions to half moons I prophesy that a crescent bunker will greet a "daisy cutter" drive in the near future.

Nothing seems to have been done as yet regarding the ground clearance between the Clubhouse and the fifth green. Perhaps it is asking too much at the present

WARD WILL AGAIN LEAD SAINTS

Gill's Promise On Right Wing

St. Joseph's are making no changes in their team for Sunday, and, on last week's form, should offer a stern resistance to the fast moving Police attack.

Actually the Saints are still without the services of a leader, and Ward, who took over the position when A. V. Gosano returned to the Recreo's fold, although making an excellent substitute, is still lacking in height for the position. Lee, who plays in support of him on the right, is really a winger, but has finally settled down to his new berth.

Gill, who has not yet risen to senior division standard is gradually improving, and by the time the second round commences in the middle of December, should prove to be an ideal right winger.

The team is—Ward; D. Leonard, and Souza; Victor, Costa and Elms; Gill, Lee, Ward, Rocha and Fernandes.

Medicals' Leader A Newcomer

YOU'D ONLY BEEN HERE ONE WEEK

THE Medicals are trying out a new leader for their forward line, Youd, who arrived from England last week. Pym was injured in a friendly encounter with H.M.S. Keppel, and Poole has been moved up to take his place, while Reeves will fill the vacant half-back position. McHale is preferred to Rennie on the left-wing, and the team to meet the Lincolns on Saturday will be—Wright (C); Corbett and Slater; Reeves, Millington and Ingoe; Wright (W), Poole, Yeud, King and McHale.

Attack Best Method Of Defence For Lincolns

IT appears that the Lincolns have a team that wearies. What is the reason for the apparent falling off? Is it lack of stamina or the outcome of feeling secure? In English, Ridley, Higgins, Malpas and Baldry the Lincolns have a forward line that is capable of playing fast clever football and which, when moving, is capable of keeping any defence on their toes. If, however, they sit back and hope that defence will win matches, they will be disappointed, for the defence is not strong enough to do it. "Attack is the best means of defence" is a saying the Laues will do well to observe!

R.A.F. Rely On Trooper

The Royal Air Force team are undoubtedly triers, but the football of one or two of the team is very poor. Owing to the limited number of players at their disposal it will be difficult to replace these players at the moment, but if the trooper brings out two or three men of the calibre of Harris there will be every chance of the Air-men rising to the top again. It is too much to expect another TATE; he is in a class alone.

The team for this week will be—Fog; Kewick, Beacham, Berrington, Harris, Bickel, Thompson, Thomas, Gregory, Tate and Barton.

New Inside Forward For Kowloon Junior

Several changes have been made in the Kowloon junior team to meet the Club juniors to-morrow.

Johnson, a new arrival from Shanghai, is taking McDonald's place at inside-right; Blacklock, who played for Kowloon several seasons ago, has returned, and will be seen in his old position on the right wing.

The team is—Boyes, Catter and Willis; Hopkins, Hickman and Tillery; Blacklock, Johnson, Winch, Duffield and Pereira.

time, but I had hoped that this work would be put in hand during the current year.

FROM GOLLING—Did it ever happen to you to win the match by 10 & 8, the bye by 5 & 3, the bye by 2 & 1, & then agree to play double or quits on the last hole and lose your ball from a good drive?

Well, that's golf!

EMPLOYMENT SCHEME SOUGHT IN GT. BRITAIN

Hours Of Labour To Be Revised

7-HOUR DAY OR 5-DAY WEEK
UNDER REVIEW

London, To-day.

The possibility of absorbing more persons in industry by a better distribution of employment is engaging the active attention of the Government.

The Minister of Labour, Mr. Oliver Stanley, was asked in Parliament yesterday if he could indicate the Government's proposals, and he replied that he had arranged for immediate conversations with representative organisations and work people regarding the general question of the hours of labour.

In reply to a further question, he said that the practicability of a seven-hour day or a five-day week in industry would no doubt be under review. The matter was recently the subject of an appeal by Mr. Stanley Baldwin to employers to consider the question of a reduction of overtime, and further reference to it was made in the Commons debate on Wednesday night on the proposals for dealing with depressed areas, when the Labour Minister said that invitations to the discussions had been sent to the National Confederation of Employers' Organisations and the Trade Union Congress, and that he hoped to have an opportunity of discussing with each individual industry the part it could play. He regarded it as a national duty of the employers, wherever possible, to assist the Government in the task of dealing with unemployed.

President's Safety In London, To-day.

Matters affecting the conduct of the Saar Plebiscite, to be held in January, were raised in the House of Lords yesterday, but Lord Stanhope, on behalf of the Government, said that it would be improper for His Majesty's Government, which had no responsibility, apart from membership of the League, to express views on any aspect of the question.

A committee of three had been appointed to consider these questions by the League Council and they would report at the Council meeting next week, he said. His Majesty's Government had not received that report.

CAMOUFLAGED FUEL OIL IN CANTON

New Tariff Instituted To Curb Practice

TO OPERATE TO-DAY

[From Our Own Correspondent]
Canton, To-day.
Importers of fuel oil containing 99 per cent. kerosene will from to-day, be subject to an import tariff on the same basis as kerosene oil, which is 1.80 Customs gold units per two tins of 10 gallons.

It has been the practice of importers to add a little colouring matter to kerosene oil and then import it as fuel oil.

Fuel oil is subject to a very low importers duty in Canton, whereas the duty for the same imports outside of Kwangtung is 83.6 customs units per ton, representing the new rate. The South-west Political Council insists on the old rates for the benefit of Chinese oil refining companies, which need crude oil as raw material to be refined into kerosene.

The tax on crude oil products, as levied by the Provincial Department of Finance is now the same for Chinese and foreign oil refining companies, namely $1.50 Mex. per ton.

Knox, President of the Saar Government Commission, he said that they had sent special service men from Scotland Yard who were now on duty for that purpose.—British Wireless Service.
